The Beechwood National Military Cemetery contains four sections, scattered throughout the cemetery. These include two sections of the Commonwealth War Grave, a section managed by Veterans Affairs Canada (Section 27) and the more recent section, the National Military Cemetery of the Canadian Forces (Section 103), managed by the Department of National Defence. This page is mostly about Section 103, but for more information about burial in Section 27, visit our page on veterans and war dead. In Honour of Those Who Served Canada Section 103 is the National Military Cemetery of the Canadian Forces, in honour of the men and women who served Canada. The section was expanded by 2 hectares in 2003 and now contains 12,000 spaces for both traditional burials and cremated remains. The Beechwood Cemetery Foundation helped create the National Military Cemetery in 2007 to create a bond between those who died in active service, whose death was in service, or who served with honour and who wanted to rest with their peers on the grounds of Sections 19, 27, 29 and 103. Central Monument The Central Monument in Section 103 is dedicated to the men and women of the Canadian Forces who have served our country with honour and distinction. The monument stands on top of a ceremonial walkway, and is flanked by two poles, one waving the Canadian Forces insignia and the other waving the Canadian flag. Tri-Service Monument At the end of the walkway is the Tri-Service Monument, inaugurated on 28 June 2004. The monument has three sides, each dedicated to a branch of the Canadian Armed Forces: the Royal Canadian Navy, the Canadian Army and the Royal Canadian Air Force. On each side is engraved a poem for each branch of the Canadian Armed Forces: the Naval Anthem, In Flanders Fields and When I Think of Famous Men. National Cemetery in Memphis, Tennessee Creation of national cemeteries The National Cemetery System is a system of 171 national cemeteries in the United States. The authority of creating military burial places arrived during the American civil war, in an act approved by the United States Congress on 17 July 1862. [1] At the end of 1862 14 national cemeteries had been set up (see photo text). A national cemetery is generally a military cemetery that contains the tombs of the US military, veterans and their spouses. The most popular national cemetery is the Arlington National Cemetery in the County of Arlington, Virginia, Outside Washington D.C. Some national cemeteries, in particular Arlington, contain the tombs of important civil leaders and other important national figures. Some national cemeteries also contain sections for the confederate soldiers. In addition to national cemeteries, there are also state cemeteries of veterans. The National Cemetery Administration of the Department Veterans of the United States (VA) maintains 155 national national teams In addition to the national gravesite tracker, which can be used to find burial sites of American military veterans. [2] [3] The Army Department maintains 2 national cemeteries, national cemetery of Arlington National and Soldiers' and the National Airmen Cemetery. [4] The National Park Service (NPS) maintains 14 national cemeteries associated with historical sites and battlefields. The American Battle Monuments Commission, an independent agency, maintains 26 American military cemeteries and other memorials outside the United States. History The first national cemeteries were created after the U.S. Civil War by Edmund Burke Whitman. [5] The Congress passed a law to establish and protect national cemeteries in 1867. [6] Final military awards are provided for qualified veterans of different volunteer details known as commemorative honor detail (MHD) at the request of family members through their choice of mortuaries who manage the remains of the dead.
