[The bourgeoisie] has solved the personal value in exchange value, and instead of the inexhaustible freedoms rented, has established that unique, unconscious freedom — free trade. In a word, for exploitation, veiled by religious and political illusions, replaced the naked exploitation, without shame, direct, brutal. The bourgeoisie has stripped of its halo every occupation so far honored and sought with reverent fear. He converted the doctor, the priest, the poet, the man of science, into his paid wage workers. The bourgeoisie cannot exist without constantly revolutionizing the instruments of production, and therefore the relationships of society. The preservation of the old methods of production in an unaltered form was, on the contrary, the first conditions, uncertainty and eternal agitation distinguish the bourgeois era from all precedents. All fixed and frozen relationships, with their train of ancient and venerable prejudices and opinions, are wiped out, all new forms become antiquated before they can obstruction. All that is solid merges into the air, all that is holy is profaned, and man is finally forced to face with sober senses his real conditions of life, and his relations with his kind. The need for a constantly expanding market for its products chases the bourgeoisie on the whole surface of the globe. It must nest everywhere, settle everywhere, settle everywhere, settle everywhere, settle everywhere, settle everywhere and improvement of all the instruments of production, with the immensely facilitated means of communication, attracts all, even the most barbaric nations, in civilization. The cheap prices of the goods are the heavy artillery with which all the Chinese walls are lowered, with which it forces all nations, on the pain of extinction, to adopt the bourgeois way of production, forcing them to introduce what civilization calls among them, that is to become bourgeois themselves. In a word, he creates a world after his image. The bourgeoisie continues to do more and more to avoid the scattered state of the population, the means of production and ownership. It has agglomerated population, centralized the means of production, and has properties concentrated in few hands. The necessary consequence of this was political centralization. Independent provinces, or but freely connected, with a government, a code of laws, a national class interest, a frontier, and a customs-tariff. För andra betydelser se: Max Weber (olika betydelser). Ideologiskt var Weber liberal,[5] vilket inte minst tydliggjordes i hans senare arbeten med Weimarrepublikens konstitution. In the Spirit of Protestant Ethics and Capitalism (1905), Weber is subject to capitalism developed only in the VÄxstvärlden and not NÅf ¥ gon elsewhere. From the case of the Roman kingdom, there were several civilizations in the world that was more emerging ¥ ends Europe. It is from this fŶrhÅf ¥ llnningsÅfå¤TT as the spirit of HÅfå¤rstammar capitalism, according to Weber. [8] The class concept can be considered developed in controversy with Karl Marx and the stations of him. While Marx sees the co-industry classes that they founded how the meetings are linked to the other in the production site, weber classes see how a more direct expression for what the meetings must offer the bourgeois public, he wants to be GA their resources and talents. This is a difference in discharge between them. According to Weber Kännetecknas classes that their members have a common specific cause factor that makes their chances of life. This component consists of control over the property and Förtjänster or performance of Ãf¶ver FörmÃf â ¥ ga. It is the type of opportunities to consider the historically conditional relational categories that determine applications for individuals Ãf¶den. The situation of the class is in this commission ultimately a subject located. [9] Weber assumes that the class situation depends on the type of goods or properties that members control and the types of services or results they can offer. Class situations are dAfA r mAf ¥ ngfild of lessons. Control on different types of properties the substrate for different types of "property" classes". The concept of "social classes" is based on social relations among individuals individuals Lessons, whose mergers are characterized by a large stability even for generations. The WEBER class concept has some similarities with the concept of class situations. Weber SÃf ¥ g FÃf¶rom The life of production Life consumption â¤ven FÃf¤n as an important interest of interest and groups of conflicts. Differences in lifestyle, founded in experience in the family and during revenue time, manifested in consumption results, according to Weber give rise to status groups or StAf ¥ nd. A situation of a social state is conducted by a particular, positive or negative, socially determination of the reputation and honor of an individual. The social class and the social status cannot be seen as two different aspects of social stratification. In the seat, Weber, Will, material resources, founded in class situations often in contrast to the state scheme tends to reduce the economic order and vice versa, and each group of individuals for both these schemes, becomes a longer-term development of the mobile conflict hom AfA Is A ga. The Max Weber sociological theory is in 1917, with the very skeptical viewer and the revolutionary Ernst toller in the background. In his sociological work, Weber studied both the structures of collaboration on social pratality and the mechanisms behind the future of these structures. Interpreting the reasons and intentions of the actors, Weber wanted to welcome a recommendation for their situations of the reasons and intentions of the actors. interested in subjective attention actions. But in case of mediation, he went beyond the individual and linked to the prairie for the social structure. According to Weber, the social structure. Weber was one of the sociologists who are the power of power and the conditions for the power study. According to Weber, a successful power study was largely due to how high grade a Power Explorer can obtain the subordinates to believe in the legittimità (here is referred to the legittimità perceived on the group level ¥ the side of the group) in his estate power. [11] The main foundations FAfA¶R to hike on power and motivations to subordinate the Weber power group in three ideals: (1) the rational, (2) the traditional and (3) the reasons of Charismatic legitimitimità. In the first case, the authority is based on considered subordinates on the legality of a fixed order and the power of operators to give instructions to re-organize this order. In the second case, the authority is founded on the time of tradition and on legitimity in the traditional way to name the rulers.
