[7] Richie didn't believe that a waltz Mount the commodore's musical style, so he wrote it imagining it would be sung by Frank Sinatra. [4] Like the band preparing to record the Natural High Album, the members of the group presented various songs that they had written. Richie played "three times a lady" for producer James Carmichael, with a warning that he intended to launch the song in Sinatra. Carmichael insisted that the song be added to the Commodores album. [4] Release in the United States, "Three times a Lady" was the first of two singles out of the high natural. [8] He entered the chart Hot 100 Billboard on the 18th of June 1978 to number 73.
