attended Crennhaw's secondary school, which was almost entirely composed of black students. [9] [11] The marrow stood out from most of his friends because he did not drink alcohol, smoking tobacco or using drugs. [12] During marrow time in teaching, gangs became more prevalent in the Los Angeles school system. Students who belonged to the Crips and the blood gangs participated in Crennhaw and fought in the school corridors. [9] marrow, although never a real gang member, was affiliated with the first. [9] The marrow started to read the novels of Slim Iceberg, which he memorized and recited to his friends, who liked to hear the stretches and told him, "Yo, kick a little more by ice, t" [12] Giving the marrow his famous nickname. The marrow and other cryptures wrote and held "Crip Rhymes". [13] His musical career began with the band's band singing the precious few of Crennhaw's secondary school. His marrow and group opened the show, dancing to a live band. The singers were Thomas Barnes, Ronald Robinson and Lapkas Mayfield. In 1975, at the age of seventeen, the marrow begun to receive benefits from social security resulting from his father's death and used the money to rent an apartment for $ 90 per month. [12] He sold Cannabis and stole car steals to make extra money, but he was not doing enough to support his girlfriend. After his daughter was born, the marrow enlisted in the United States Exchange in October 1977. After basic formation, the marrow was attributed to the 25th Department of Infantry. [12] [14] During his time at the meter of Exchange was involved with a group of accused soldiers â € â € of theft of a rug. [12] While waiting for trial, he received a check of $ 2,500 and was absent without licensing, returning a month later, after the rug had been returned. The marrow received a non-judicial punishment as a consequence of his duty's discouragement. [12] During his spell in exacito, the marrow was interested in the Música Hip Hop. He heard the settlement of Sugarhill Gang's Rapper's Rapper's (1979), which inspired him to carry out his own rails on the instrumental and other initial records of hip-hop. The music, however, did not fit Your letters or form of delivery. [13] When he was parked in Hawaiah (where prostitution was not a heavily processed crime) as a squad leader in Schofield barracks, the marrow found a pimp called Mac. [12] Mac admired that the marrow could quote iceberg slim, and he taught the marrow as being a single pimp. [12] The marrow also was able to Cheap sound equipment in Havaan, including two Tech-discs, a mixer, and great speakers. Once equipped, he began to learn Turntablism and Rap. [13] Marrow learned from his commander he could receive an honorable dispensation early because he was a single father. Taking advantage of this, Marrow was unloaded as a first-class soldier (PFC - E3) in December 1979 after serving for two years and two months. [12] [14] During an episode of The Adam Carolla Podcast which aired on June 6, 2012, Marrow stated that after being dismissed from Exchange, he began a career as a bench thief. Marrow claimed that he and some colleagues began to take take-over assaults to the bank "as [in the movie] Heat." Marrow also stated that she was happy the United States's justice system has limitation statutes, which had probably expired when marrow admitted his involvement in several class 1 felonies in the DA © 1980 initiate to mid . [Need fountains?] In July 2010, Marrow was arrested by mistake. A month later, when Marrow participated court, the accusations were withdrawn and the prosecution stated that "there was a material error when the rapper was arrested." Marrow gave some advice to the young people who think to go to jail is a brand of integrity, saying: "Credibility street has nothing to do with going to jail, which has everything to do with staying out" [15] Ancient Career (1980a 1981) After leaving Exchange, Marrow wanted to stay away from the life of gangs and violence and instead make a name for himself as a DJ. [13] As a tribute to Iceberg Slim, Marrow adopted the artistic name of Ice-T. During the accomplishment as DJ at parties, he received more attention for his rap, which led Ice-T to pursue a career like rapper. [13] After breaking with his girlfriend Caitlin Boyd, he returned to a life of crime and stolen jewelry shops with his school friends. ICE-T RAPs later described how he and his friends pretended to be clients to have access before breaking the display glass with baby ladybugs. [13] [16] Friends of Ice-t Al P. and Sean E. Sean went to Prison. Al P. was arrested in 1982 and sent to the prison for stealing a high-end jewelry store in Laguna Niguel for $ 2.5 million in Jewelry. Sean was detained by possession of cannabis not only, which Sean sold, but also stolen the material by ICE-T. Sean assumed guilt and served two years in prison. Ice-T stated that he had a gratitude ditch to Sean because his prison time allowed him to pursue a career like rapper. At the same time, he ended up in a car accident and was hospitalized as a John Doe, because he does not perform any form of identification due to his criminal activities. [18] Two weeks after being released from the hospital, he earned an open microphone competition judged by Kurtis Blow. [19]

In 1983, First Single Engraved Strong, "Cold Wind Madness" of Ice-t launched a series of electro hip-hop album that became a success in the basement, becoming popular, although the Radium stations did not play due to heavy letters of the music. [17] That same year, Ice-T launched "Body Rock", another unique hip-hop electro that found popularity in clubs. In 1984, Ice-T released the individual killers, the first of his political RAPs, and then was a rapper featured in "reckless", a single from DJ Chris "The Glove" Taylor and (co-producer) David This song was almost immediately followed by a sequel, entitled "reckless rivalry (combat)", which was presented at the breakin 'sequelae, Breakin 'seq released. Ice later recorded the songs "ya did not give up" and "dog'n the wax (you do not quit-part II)" with unknown DJ, which provided a race - similar to DMC for the songs. [19] Ice-T received more inspiration as an artist at Schoolly D's Gangsta Rap Single "P.S.K. What does it mean?", Which he heard in a club. Ice-t enjoyed the sound and delivery of the soil, as well as its vacant references to the life of gangs, although the true gang of life, parks killers, was not named in music. Ice-T decided to adopt the school's D's style, and wrote the lyrics of his first Gangsta rap music, "6 in the morning," in his Hollywood apartment, and created a minimum beat with a Roland Tr- 808. He compared the sound of music, which was recorded as a b-side on the only "Dog The Wax" for the Beastie Boys. [19] The single was launched in 1986, and he learned that "6 in the morning" "was more popular in clubs than his side, taking ice-t to rap on Los Angeles Gang Life, which he described more explicitly than any previous rapper. [74] In 2001, it was in 4th place between its total etches in sales, with about 3 million copies sold in the US. [75] Superstardom: 1995 - 1996 While arrested in February to October 1995, Shakur wrote only one music, he would say. [76] Instead, he led to the politician Niccolan Machiavelli's politician treating the prince and the military strategist of Sun Tzu, the art of war. [77] And in Shakur, in Financially terrestrial terrestrial terrestries, needed help, his mother about to lose his home. [78] In August, after sending $ 15,000 to her, Sorge began to visit Shakur in Prison. [78] On one of his letters to Nina Bhadreshwar, recently hired to edit a planned magazine, the corridor of death without cuts, [79] Shakur discusses plans to start a "new chapter". [80] Eventually, the journalist of Música Kevin Powell would say that Shakur, once released, became more aggressive, and "it seemed a completely transformed person." [81] The room is shakur, all eyes on me, arrived on February 13, 1996. Of two discs, basically was the first double album of rap - encounter two of three Albums due in the contract of Shakur with death - and were five singles, marking the 1990 rap peak. [82] The Album shows Shakur quickly on the gangsta lifestyle, leaving behind his previous policy messages. With the highlight production, the ilbum has more party tracks and often a triumphant tone. [7] Like Shakur's second llbum to hit No. 1 on both Main R & B / Hip-Hop and Pop Label Graphics, Outdoor 200, [7] He sold 566,000 copies in his first week and was certified for 5 years Platinum in April. November 1993, Shakur and other three men were accused â € â € â € in New York with sexually assaulting a woman in Shakur and the other men raped her. Interviewed at the Arsenio Salon Show, Shakur said he was wounded that "a woman would accuse me of taking something from her." [113] On December 1, 1994, Shakur was convicted of first-degree sexual abuse, but acquainted with expenses associated with sodomy and pistol. In February 1995, he was sentenced to 18 months to 4 + 1 "2 years of prison for a judge who decreased" an act of brutal violence against a desparent woman "[114] [115] on October 12, 1995, Judicial appeal, Shakur was released from Clinton Correctional Facility, [29] Since Knight Sue, CEO of Death Row Records, organized to launch his bond of $ 1.4 million. [103] On April 5, 1996, Shakur was sentenced to 120 days in the chain of violating his terms of release, failing to appear for a road cleaning work, [116], but on June 8, his Sentity was postponed in other cases. [117] New York Scene 1990s in 1991, Shakur debuted at a new registration label, interscope records, who knew little about rap. to that year, records implacehs. Veis, formed during 1986 in Compton, California, prioritized rap, and his NWA group had taken Gangsta rap to platinum sales, but the letters of N. W.A, scandalously violent and miserable, prevented the main advance. On the other hand, it is also specializing in rap, profile records, New York, had a great pop advance, "walk in this way" in 1986. In April 1991, NWA broke out by the Dr. Dre, with Sugue Knight, launch death line records in Los Angeles. [118] With his first two İnbums, death row became the first registration label to prioritize rap and regularly release population hits, pop [118]. Launched by Death Row at the end of 1992, the DRE is the chronicles - his "nuthin", but "G "Thang" omnipresent in Pop Radium and "Let Me Walk" Winning a Grammy "was dragged At the end of 1993 by Snoop Doggystyle. [118] Gangsta rap, no less, these etches and more boosted the west coast for the first time, ahead of New York, fired his star A & R Man, Sean "Puff Daddy", then "P. Diddy". [118] Puffy, although leaving behind her highlighting projects, Jodeci and Mary J. Blige, two Augos of R & B, led to his own, new record label, Bad Boy records, promising Gangsta Rapper Biggie Smalls, but also known as the Big News [118] His debut Álbum, launched at the end of 1994, ready to die, promptly returned the rapelophots to New York. [118] Stretch World of Rap and Live Team in 1988, Randy "Stretch" Walker, along with his brother, Majesty nicknamed, and a friend debuted with an EP as rap group and production team, Live Plant, in the neighborhood of New York. 119] The Shakur's days with the digital underground made his acquaintance with the stretch, which presented on a 1991 Underground Level of the Underground Digital, P. Children quickly becoming friends, Shakur and recorded elongation and presented themselves together frequently. [119] Stretch, as well as live Squad, trails contributed in the first two İnbums of Shakur, November 1991, then February 1993, and the Shakur Collateral Group, Thug Life, September 1994 Álbum. The end of the friendship of Shakur and Stretch at the end of 1994 surprised the Rap scene of New York. [119] The nearby Shakur, launched in February 1996, has lines suggesting the imminent death of the stretch for the betrayal. No objective evidence would publicly emerge to tangle stretching in the weapon attack in Shakur, while with excerpt and two two, around 12:30 p.m. on November 30, 1994. In any case, after a production session Live Squad for the second llbum of Queens Rapper NAS, the passage vehicle was pursued while receiving fatal shots at about 12:30 p.m. on November 30, 1995. [119] Biggie and Júz Mafia During 1993 and 1994, small biggie verses guests in several singles, often R & B, like Mary J. Blige's "What is the 411? Remix", set great expectations for your Estrà © I would. Swollen perfectionism, still forming his bad boy's licit, spread his record for 18 months. In 1993, visiting Los Angeles, Biggie asked a local drug dealer for an introduction to Shakur, who then received the friends of Biggie and Biggie and Biggie and Biggie and Biggie and Lectivities. [78] On subsequent visits to Los Angeles, Biggie and his circle. [78] During this period, in his own live shows, Shakur would call Biggie on the stage for rap with him and extend. [78] Together, they recorded the "Runnin 'musics of the polish" and "house of pain". Allegedly, Biggie asked Shakur to manage him, with what Shakur advised him that Inch would make him a star. [78] However, while this, Shakur's lifestyle was comparatively luxurious while Biggie seemed to continue using the same pair of boots for maybe a year. [78] Shakur received Biggie to join his group's useful life. [78] Biggie, instead, would form his own side group, Junior Mafia, with his friends from Brooklyn, ceased and Lil 'Kim, in Bad Boy. resistant New Yundundo, Jacques "Haitian Jack" Agnant, [121] a manager and promoter of rappers. Formerly, Shakur met him in a queens nightclub, where, noting it amid women and champagne, Shakur asked for an introduction. [78] In November 1993, in his Manhattan hotel room, Shakur received a return visit from a woman. Soon, she claimed sexual assault for him and three other men there: his Charles Fuller Road manager, with age 24, a Ricardo Brown, aged 30 years, [123] and a "Nigel", later understood as Jack Haitian. [78] In November 1994, Jack's case was divided and closed by the contractless underworld, Jimmy Henchman doubled as a manager of music. [121] Bryce Wilson's Groove Theory was an initial customer, and signed for Uptown records, was Rapper Little Shawn, Biggie's friend and Lil 'Cease. [121] Eventually, Jack and Henchman supposedly fell, supposedly throwing one into the other in Miami. [121] And for the largest drug traffic, Henchman would be sent to prison in a sense of life. in New York recording verses for a Mixtape of Ron G, Shakur was repeatedly distracted by his beep. [121] Music Manager James "Jimmy Henchman" Rosemond, supposedly offered Shakur $ 7,000 to stop by Quad Studios, at Times Square, that night to record a verse for his small Shawn. [78] [121] Shakur was not sure, but agreed with session as he needed the money to compensate for legal costs. He arrived with stretch and one or two others. In the lobby, three men stole and win it to a weapon; Shakur speculated that the shooting had been a configuration. [63] [125] Three hours after surgery, against the board of the doctor, Shakur checked from the Bellevue hospital center. The next day, in a bandaged Manhattan court in a wheelchair, he received the Jurid Verdict in his ongoing criminal judgment for a November 1993 sexual assault in his hotel room. Convicted by three accusations of sexual aggression, he was acquitted from six other accusations, including sodomy expenses and weapons. [127] In a 1995 interview with Vibe Magazine, Shakur accused Sean's combs, [128] Jimmy Henchman, [125] and Biggie, among others, to ride or stand in November 1994 robberies and shot. Vibe warned the names of the defendants. was because Sean's combs and Christopher Wallace were in Quad Studios in the Poca and in 1995, months Then combs and Wallace launching music "Who shot you?" Considering that the music did not make any direct reference or name of Shakur, Shakur took him as a mockery of his shot and thought they could be responsible, then he launched a music (Direct) of diss called "hit" on top, "where he targeted Wallace, combs, his registration label, Júnior Mother and at the end of hitting, "he mentioned deep mobb and Chino XL. from August to Clinton Correctional Facility in Northern New York State, Suge traveled south to the city of New York to join Death Row for the second annual ceremony of fountain. [78] Reputed to Totics Strongarm In the Rap Scene of Los Angeles, Suge used his brief stage time, mainly for Belittle Sean "Buff Daddy" Combs, Bad Boy Entertainment, the Rotter then leading the New York rap scene, which routinely He presented with his own artists. [118] [141] Eventually, Buff recalled that to preemcate the severe retaliation of his bad boy's babe, he had promptly confronted Sorge, whose response, which he had meant Jermaine SO SO DEF RECORDINGS, in Atlantaâ € Breakfast was enough political discharge the conflict. [143] Still, among the fans, the previously diffuse rivalry between the two mainstream rap scenes of the Americans had already widened instantly. [118] [142] [141] And while in New York, SUGE visited Uptown records, where Puff, under his Founder Andre Harrell, had begun in the business through a stage. [144] Apparently without paying by Uptown, dirty obtained the prime Uptown's releases of Puff Recruits Jodeci, his producer declining Swing, and Mary J. BLIGE, all, signing with the SUGE management company. [144]
On September 24, 1995, at a party for Dupri in Atlanta in the night house of Platinum house, a bad boy circle entered a heated dispute with the friend of Sorge and Sue Jai Hassan-Jamal "Great Jake" Robles, a member of blood gang and bodyguard. [118] [145] According to the testimonies, including a sheriff from Fulton County, working there as a nightclub bouncer, Buff had heatedly played with SUCE within the club, while several minutes later, out of the club, He was a friend of infancy, Anthony "Wolf" Jones, who pointed a weapon in Great Jake, who was fatally shot while entered the Suge car. [118] [146] [147] Blow lawyers and his bodyguard denied any involvement of his clients, while Puff's lawyer added that the blow did not even have his bodyguard that night. [148] More than 20 years later, the case remains officially not solved. However, immediately and persistently, it suggested blamed the breath, cementing the enmity between the two bosses, whose two registration riots dominated the two mainstream centers of rap. [118] [149] At the end of the DÃ © Each 1990, the southern growth of rap for mainstream would dissipate to the east of Western paradigm. [142] But in the meantime, in October 1995, violating his conviction of December 1994 pending, Shakur returned to Los Angeles and joined the row of death. [118] On June 4, 1996, Shakur B do Shakur "Hit 'in UP" launched Shakur.
