I have a limited amount of space and I know properly I would use "de la mañana" / "de la tarde". My audience is primarily from México. Gracias de antemano. En España estamos acostumbrados al reloj de 24 horas, o sea de las 4 de la tarde 4 p.m., por ejemplo se dice las 16h. etc. Recuerdo que en Estados Unidos no existe esta costumbre, y lamento no recordar las costumbres de México, ni de otros países de centro y sudamérica. Espera respuestas nativas My problem is that I am very limited on space in this flyer and I would like to know if hispanohablantes would understand a.m. / p.m. Gracias Budika ;) I believe we would not indeed. from 1 to 6 a. m. : 5 de la madrugada (suppose) from 6 to 12 a. m: 9 de la mañana from 1 to 8 or so p.m. : 7 de la tarde from 8 to 12 p. m: 9 de la noche We are such a complicated bunch. Though, we would definitely understand am / pm Saludos Gracias Budika, I'll make the margins a lot larger and change the font to small. Muchas gracias a ud. y a bondia. Linda ;) we would understand . Though it's more common to say 1 to 6 am : 5 de la madrugada (suppose) 7 to 12 am: 7 de la mañana 1 to 8 or so : 7 de la tarde 8to 12 pm : de la noche. It's not the usual way to say it, and I guess the way Bondia explain will work best . at 4 pm. a las 16 . Hope it helps. .) I believe we would not indeed. from 1 to 6 a. m. : 5 de la madrugada (suppose) from 6 to 12 a. m: 9 de la mañana from 1 to 8 or so p.m. : 7 de la tarde from 8 to 12 p. m: 9 de la noche We are such a complicated bunch. Though, we would definitely understand am / pm Saludos Budika, me he permitido hacerte un par de correcciones Most welcomed :) Thanks, Bondia. Would anyone please tell me if it is okay to use a.m. / p.m. when translating to spanish? I have a limited amount of space and I know properly I would use "de la mañana" / "de la tarde". My audience is primarily from México. Gracias de antemano. Un mexicano por acá... como dicho, igual que en España, acostumbramos las 24 horas. 4 de la tarde = 16:00 Diría que el uso de a.m. y p.m. está en 50% Would anyone please tell me if it is okay to use a.m. / p.m. when translating to spanish? I have a limited amount of space and I know properly I would use "de la mañana" / "de la tarde". My audience is primarily from México. Gracias de antemano. I think you should consider using the 24-hour clock, or military time as it is known in the US. The 24-hour clock is a convention of time keeping in which the day runs from midnight to midnight and is divided into 24 hours. indicated by the hours passed since midnight, from 0 to 23. This system is the most commonly used time notation in the world today. Note: In the 24-hour clock all time is always expressed as hh:mm where hh is the hour and mm is the minute. Therefore, 8 o'clock is expressed as 08:00 not 8:00. Saludos. Hi Abuelita, YES, you can use a. m. and p. m. and it will be understood. The correct way to write it though is: leaving a space after the numbers and also a space between a. and m. or p. and m. For example: 5:30 p. m. (or 5.30 p. m.) You can use a period or a colon. It is explained here: I'd definitely use Alvaro's advice and forget writing out morning/afternoon, it'd take too much space unnecessary. Even someone who can't read should be able to read and understand written time in the am/pm convection. Thank you for the voices. In your opinion, in this dialogue, how would I write the most natural and correct answer, coming from a ticket salesman, using words instead of digits.Would I need to use "son las doce y treinta y cinco tarde" or is this good?Do you go to Havana tomorrow?"“Si.”“Que hora?”“Doce y treinta y cinco.” Seeing our faces try to translate that quick answer, he wrote it down for us. '12:35'. And did I spell and punctuate correctly? [News] Hey you! The one learning a language! If you are wondering how to tell time in Spanish then this lesson is for you! Few things are more important than the ability to tell time in Spanish. You will use a different verb to tell time in Spanish than you would use to tell time in English. The verb ser is used to ask or tell time in Spanish. A few examples: ¿Qué hora es? - What time is it? Es la una. - It's one o'clock. Son las dos. - It's two o'clock. Son las doce. - It's twelve o'clock. Note: The plural form (son) is used for two o'clock through twelve. Sentences about time Instead of saying 15 minutes, cuarto is generally used. Media is used instead of 30 minutes. Es la una y cuarto. It is one-fifteen (1:15). A la una y media. At one-thirty (1:30). Note: Minutes up to half an hour are added to the hour using y; above that, they are typically subtracted from the hour with menos. Son las cinco y diez. It's ten after five. Son las tres menos cuarto. It's two forty-five (2:45). Son las tres menos diez. It's ten till three (2:50). Telling time in Spanish and English do have some similarities. As with English, noon and midnight have special terms in Spanish. Es medianoche. - It's midnight. Es la medianoche. - It's midnight. a la medianoche - at midnight Ellos toman el bus de la medianoche. They take the midnight bus. al mediodía - at noon Eso es temprano. Yo me levanto al mediodía. That's early. I get up at noon. Note: To indicate the time at which something occurs, the preposition "a" is used: El tren llega a las tres y media. The train arrives at three-thirty (3:30). El avión llega a las tres. The plane arrives at 3 o'clock (3:00) Note: The phrase "it is time to" is translated as es hora de plus the infinitive: Es hora de comer. It's time to eat. ¡Apaguen las luces! Es hora de dormir. Lights out! It is bed time. Note: The imperfect tense is used to talk about Spanish time in the past. Eran las cinco de la tarde. It was five in the afternoon. Eran las cuatro cuando llegamos. It was four o'clock when we arrived. Eran las once de la noche. It was 11:00 in the evening.
